Sunday Service At Church Here To Be Unusual

Fine Program Arranged for Worship at Lomita Community

The services at the Lomita Community Church promise to be of more than usual interest next Sunday. A pleasing musical program for all services has been arranged by H. Coackley, the chorister.

At the morning service the following will be offered: Voluntary, "Grand Chorus in D" (Sheppard); offertory, "The Lost Chord" (Sullivan); anthem, "The Lord Is My Shepherd"; quartet, "Nearer, Still Nearer" (Morris); postlude, "Finale in C."

At 7:15 in the evening Mr. Coackley will present an organ recital. The first number will be "The Storm" (Wagner), followed by "Evening Repose" (Scharwenka); voluntary, "Poet and Peasant" (Schubert); offertory, "Ave Maria" (Mascagni); anthem by the choir; solo and chorus, Mrs. Ethel Bromley; postlude, "The Choristers March" (Rose).

The subject of the sermon at the morning service will be "The Christian's Responsibilities." This will be followed by a brief service of dedication of the canvassers.

After the morning service lunch will be served for the men and women who during the afternoon will canvass members and friends for pledges for church support for the coming year. A budget of $3300 has been authorized and the church officials are very enthusiastic over the progress the church has made and are eager to present the needs of the growing church to the community. A generous response is expected.

The evening sermon subject will be "Who Enters Heaven?" A cordial invitation is extended to all friends of the church to attend these services.

fond of him, too. As I would like to get him to go out once more what can I do or say to him. I love him with all my heart and he liked me until about a year ago, and would go out with me. He says he likes to be friends with me but can't go out with me any more. Please answer.

H. It is no wonder you and your husband do not get along. He has a right to distrust you, and his suspicions are certainly well founded. Doubtless the other man does not want to have anything more to do with you because he has more respect for himself, and more feeling for the person he is married to. He probably regrets his first attentions to you.

Goethe, in "Faust," observes that "The fine emotions whence our lives are moulded are in earthly tumult dumb and cold." I am reminded of the lines by the following unusually interesting letter:

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am going to ask you a question which you will no doubt think is peculiar. Do you think I am capable of any strong feeling, emotion of love of any sort? My mother says I am heartless, hard hearted and cold. When I go away from my family, I am not the least bit homesick for my parents or brothers. I never miss them when they are away from me. When my best friend died, I couldn't cry. I felt very bad, but I soon found another friend. We were the best of pals. She moved away and I didn't even feel blue about it. A short time ago, my father was very ill and everyone cried and thought he wouldn't be well again. Of course I felt badly, but try as hard as I could, I just couldn't cry. I never shed tears. No matter when I'm in great pain at the dentist's, I just can't cry. Mother often wonders and is very worried about me. She says that even when I was a baby I seldom cried, and when I was a very little girl, I never missed her when taken away from her. I try so hard to shed tears, but they just don't come. I love babies, and can't bear to see people harm small pets, and when children quarrel, I don't like to listen to them. I am twenty years old and engaged to a very nice man, but don't know whether or not I love him. I believe I will never know what love is because I have never felt it for anybody. Do you think I should marry or do you think I am without emotional feelings? Thanking you for your advice.

F.D. You have no reason to worry. F.D. Many persons are so constituted emotionally that they never cry. And the fact that you do not cry does not denote lack of emotional feeling. Every human has it, in some form. It's just that some are more demonstrative than others. And love isn't a mere feeling. I am sure that you are.
